

BOB'S BBQ & PIZZERIA

A Complete and Faithful Register of the Pies

What follows is the full inventory of pizzas presently offered by this establishment, set down in plain terms for the benefit of the hungry, the indecisive, and the person in the passenger seat who insists they “don’t care, whatever you want.” Every pie is built to order. Most of them are named after something that actually happened around here. Choose accordingly.

THE PIES

THE GREAT SOUTH BAY

MOZZARELLA · FRESH BASIL

Cheese and basil, and that is the whole of it. Proposals to introduce a third element have been received, considered, and respectfully declined. Named for the water at the end of the road and built on the same principle: you do not improve on it. You just show up.

THE SNEDECOR SPECIAL

MOZZARELLA · PEPPERONI · FURCI'S HOT SAUSAGE

Pepperoni and Furci's hot sausage, together, with no negotiation entered into by either party. Named for the avenue that runs down to the water past the high school — where, if we are being honest about it, all the coolest people in Bayport happen to live. We do not make the rules. We only write them down.

THE PHANTOM

RICOTTA · MOOTZ · FRESH BASIL · GARLIC-INFUSED OIL

A white pie of considerable discretion, and the house tribute to the Phantoms. Ricotta and mootz in quiet conversation, basil called only as a witness, garlic oil applied as a gesture rather than a pour. Pale, quiet, and very difficult to defend against.

THE (M)OST (V)ALUABLE (P)IZZA

MARINARA · VODKA SAUCE · PESTO

Three sauces. One pie. Red, pink, and green, laid down in territories that broadly respect one another's borders. The kitchen acknowledges that this is a great deal of sauce, and would like it entered into the record that nobody has ever once sent one back.

THE JUMPS

PESTO · CHICKEN · FRESH BASIL

Pesto, chicken, basil. Named for a pile of dirt behind a certain school that became, for a certain stretch of time, a certain set of jumps. That is the entire account. There is nothing further to it, and anyone who tells you otherwise is embellishing.

THE PAT-MED

BLACK OLIVE · PEPPERONI

Black olive and pepperoni, and yes, we went ahead and named it after them. Brine on one side, cured pork on the other, an arrangement that works considerably better than anyone expected it to. Credit where credit is due. We can afford to be gracious.

GRANDPA'S GARDEN

PESTO BASE · SEASONAL GREENS & VEGETABLES

A pesto base beneath whatever the season has seen fit to provide. The composition changes without notice and without consultation, the way a garden does — and the way every grandfather on this street has handed you a bag of tomatoes in August whether or not you asked for one.

MY2PUPS

MARINARA · VODKA SAUCE · FURCI'S HOT & SWEET SAUSAGE

Two sauces, two sausages — hot and sweet, red and pink — exactly as the name warrants. No half measures anywhere on it. Named for Cutter and Dock, who have never once been fed from this pie and who remain, to this day, extremely optimistic about their chances. They are good dogs. Mom says so, and Mom is not wrong about this.

631-472-1310

Call it in. We'll get it in the oven.

Availability is governed by the season, the walk-in, and the general state of things. Substitutions are entertained and additional toppings are welcomed with enthusiasm.

ABOUT OUR EXECUTIVE CHEF

CHEF BOB

EXECUTIVE CHEF · BOB'S BBQ & PIZZERIA

Chef Bob has served as Executive Chef of Bob's BBQ & Pizzeria since its inception, though he had been filling the bellies of hungry people for a good while before the restaurant ever existed.

From cross-country pasta parties to only the finest of Pizza-ques, Chef Bob is a fixture of the Bayport food scene and a foodie of long standing. He is known for his signature nod of approval, and no meal is safe from his review — so much so that Chef Karen, Chief Executive Officer of Bob's BBQ & Pizzeria, has taken to calling him The Critic.

Barstool's El Pres has not yet weighed in. An 8.9 is nonetheless considered the floor around here, and the phrase “a great flop” has been workshopped at some length in anticipation of the day he does.

But what actually makes Chef Bob's day is not the perfect sear on a steak, nor the perfectly floppy crust that has become his calling card. It is the sharing of his hearth and his home. More than anything else, he loves handing good food to the people who come through The Yard and taking part in the oldest arrangement there is — the breaking of bread.

So thank you, from the whole Faiella family. There is nowhere else we would rather be than right here, making you some good food, pouring you a great drink, and putting together a few memories worth keeping.
